Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 48-52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 48 is indefinite. In claim 48 only one step is being claimed. There is no intervening step to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 10-26, 30-31, 39-47, 53-67 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Fraser et al. (6,755,841).

Fraser et al disclose an instrument for inserting into an intervertebral space an intervertebral implant (24) having a top, which in the intervertebral space engages one vertebral surface, and having a bottom which in the intervertebral space engages the other vertebral surface, comprising a pair of arms (12,14), connected to each other and including an upper arm and a lower arm (12A, 12B, 14A, 14B), the arms being constructed to close towards each other to enter recesses in the top and bottom of the implant, respectively, to secure an intervertebral implant therebetween and separable away from each other for removal from the intervertebral implant as best seen in FIGS. 4, 5, each arm including at its outer end a recess engaging portion adapted to be inserted in a recess; as set forth in column 6, lines 10-27; and as best seen in FIGS. 1-19; a spacer (10).

With respect to the method claims, the method steps, as set forth, would have been inherently carried out in the operation of the device, as set forth above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 24-26, 48-52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fraser et al. (6,755,841) in view of Thalgott (6,558,424).

With respect to the claims, it is noted that Fraser et al disclose all the limitations; except for a single pivot connection in the manner of a scissors; as claimed by applicant. However, in a similar art, Thalgott evidences the use of a spacer (26) mounted between the upper a lower arms for engaging an implant (5) and a pair of arms connected together at a single pivot connection in the manner of a scissors to facilitate insertion of an implant into a vertebral disc space.

Therefore, given the teaching of Thalgott, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the device of Fraser et al, as taught by Thalgott, to facilitate insertion of an implant into a vertebral space

With respect to the method claims, the method steps, as set forth, would have been obviously carried out in the operation of the device, as set forth above.

Response to Amendment

Applicant's arguments, see Remarks, filed 6/22/07, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1,10-26,30,39-67 under 102/103 have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Fraser et al. Applicant stated that Thalgott did not teach of an implant having a top and bottom engaging the vertebral surface and each arm including at its outer end a recess engaging portion, however, in a similar art, Fraser et al discloses an instrument with arm having recess engaging portion and an implant having top and bottom surfaces that engage the vertebral surface and also having a recess, as best seen in FIGS. 4, 5.

Conclusion
